IN KIDNAPING QUIZ

BELLBOY GIVES KIDNAPING CLUE

Describes Man in Gray Cap Who Asked Identity of Abduction Victim.

TALKED TO ROSS IN HOTEL

Police Believe He May Have Been Spotter for Three Who Snatched Chicagoan.

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO, Sept. 28—A hotel bellboys' meager description of a mysterious man in a gray cap offered the only promising clue today to the kidnapers of wealthy and aged Charles C Ross.

The man talked to Ross in a Sycamore, Ill., hotel a few hours before the 72-year-old retired greeting card manufacturer was abducted on a highway a few miles west of Chicago Saturday night.

No demand for ransom had been received by the victim's distraught wife. The kidnapers' silence engendered a belief that Ross might have died from shock. He had suffered from heart disease.

The conversation between Ross and the man wearing a gray cap occurred at the Fargo hotel where the former had dined with his one-time secretary Miss Florence Freihage, 44.

Asked Identification

Cecil Vandemere 19-year-old bellboy said the man approached him in the lobby and pointing at Ross asked:

"Do you know who that is" He looks like a man I used to know."

Vandemere replied he did not know the elderly man. Later he told police he was unable to tell whether Ross and the stranger were acquainted.

Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief of the state's attorney's police, said the man may have been a spotter for the three kidnapers who forced Ross out of his car and carried him off in their own.

"I am convinced that this was a real kidnaping but that it was accomplished by amateurs," Capt. Gilbert said, adding his belief that at least five men have participated if the kidnaping was the work of professionals.

Capt. Gilbert said an investigation disclosed the victim's past life was above reproach and free of scandal. Ross was not in financial difficulties nor did he have any known enemies, he said.

Miss Freihage added no new details in the retelling of her story.

RUSSIAN ENVOY TO CHINA FLIES HOME SUDDENLY

Believed on Vital Mission Affecting Stand in Sino-Japanese War.

HOPS DIRECT TO MOSCOW

Reds Warn Tokyo Aerial Raids Are Illegal but Attacks on Nanking Continue.

By The Associated Press
NANKING, Sept. 28—Dimitri V. Bogomoloff, the Soviet ambassador to China, left suddenly for Moscow today on what was believed to be a vital mission affecting Russia's position in the Sino-Japanese war.

The Russian ambassador left aboard a special Eurasia air liner for a direct flight to Moscow after raiding Japanese warplanes had been driven off by Chinese pursuit planes before they could damage their military objectives.

Bogomoloff was flying the northwestern route and was expected to reach the Russian capital in four days for an important conference on the future Soviet course.

Brand Raids Illegal

Russia has declared Japan's repeated bombardments of Nanking to be "illegal" and warned Japan she would be held fully responsible for any injury to Soviet citizens or property. The Soviet warning was believed to be in response to a Chinese appeal for aid.

The fleet of 30 raiding Japanese planes bombed the military airdrome on the outskirts of Nanking for 10 minutes before Chinese pursuit craft rose to the attack. In apparent reaction to foreign protests against bombardment of civilians, the Japanese avoided the thickly populated areas.

Twelve Chinese craft cut out an equal number of Japanese planes and for more than an hour they fought a series of dog fights high in the skies. The air battle ended in a draw, both sides withdrawing as the weather grew worse.

Head for Wuhu

The Japanese warplanes headed up the Yangtze river in the direction of Wuhu, 30 miles to the southwest. Among the principal targets of the raiders, in addition to the airdrome and arsenal outside the capital, were the towns of Chuyung, Lishui and Tangtu.

Japan was estimated by foreign military observers in north China to be mobilizing 600,000 troops for a possible clash with Russia.

French army authorities at Tientsin headquarters of the Japanese north China expeditionary force, reported the full strength of Japan in Korea and Manchukuo, on the border of Soviet Siberia, was being placed on a war footing in the event Russia becomes embroiled.

(Both Japan and Russia were reported in Tokyo yesterday to be massing huge troop concentrations along the Manchukuo-Siberia frontier. Reliable Tokyo sources described the tension between Russia and Japan as the most critical since 1932 when the Manchukuo empire was created.

MARION HAS PART IN SAFETY ANNIVERSARY

Wreath Will Be Placed on Grave of One of Council's Founders.

Marion will have a part in the commemoration Thursday of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the National Safety Council, an organization promoting safety in industrial plants.

A wreath will be placed in Marion cemetery at the grave of one of the 10 deceased members of the group that organized the council on Sept. 30, 1912. He was Charles L. Close, former executive of the United States Steel corporation, who was buried on the Kennedy family lot in Marion cemetery.

Arthur S. Brooks, Boy Scout executive for the Harding area, announced this morning that Marion Boy Scouts will place a wreath on the Close grave at 1:30 p. m. Thursday and that members of Marion Chamber of Commerce and the Marion Safety Council will take part in the brief ceremony at the grave.

Although Mr. Close never made his home in Marion, he had a wide acquaintance here. He is a brother-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. O. Earl Kennedy of Vernon Heights boulevard who are now visiting Mr. Close's widow, Mrs. Edna Close, at East Orange, N. J. He formerly was connected with a steel mill at Shelby before rising to the position of a U. S. Steel executive in New York City.

The Association of Iron & Steel Engineers will hold a memorial service in Chicago Thursday to mark the anniversary and pay tribute to the memory of the group of 10 founders who have died.

It is expected that Homer J. Wolfe and Stephen Tener, both of Cleveland, will come to Marion Thursday to represent the association at the memorial service at Marion cemetery. Mr. Wolfe is manager of the safety, sanitation and welfare department of the Cleveland Steel & Wire Co.

BUDGET BALANCE SOUGHT BY TAX BOOST IF NEEDED

Morgenthau and Eccles To Urge Roosevelt To Even Books During Next Fiscal Year To Bolster Business Confidence.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 — The administration's two chief fiscal officers will urge President Roosevelt to balance the budget in the next fiscal year, informed officials said today, even if it requires new and heavier taxes.

These persons said Secretary Morgenthau and Chairman Mariner S. Eccles of the federal reserve board are convinced a balance between income and spending is essential to bolster business confidence and permit a paring down of the $36,864,000,000 public debt.

Although neither has commented on the recent stock market decline, authorities pictured both as believing this drop probably resulted in part from business uncertainty over the government's future fiscal course.

Morgenthau seeking to eliminate the red-ink entries written on federal account books since 1931, already has started a series of conferences about balancing the budget in 1938-39.

At his press conference late yesterday, he said "we are exploring every avenue through which savings might be effected" during the current fiscal year.

The deficit stands now at $247,000,000, compared with Mr. Roosevelt's estimate of $418,000,000 for the entire fiscal year. Treasury authorities said they were hopeful the deficit could be held under the President's estimate, but expressed doubt that it could be eliminated entirely.

Morgenthau, it was said, will give the chief executive up-to-the-minute financial estimates for both this year and next immediately after Mr. Roosevelt's return from the west.

If the treasury secretary's survey of this year's fiscal picture shown that a budget balance can not be attained without higher taxes officials said, he will recommend that heavier levies be provided.

The treasury is making a thorough survey of the entire tax structure. Authorities said that after a basic program is laid down, it will be relatively simple to fix tax rates which would close the spread between receipts and spending.

Although these persons asserted heavier taxes naturally might be greeted without congressional enthusiasm during a campaign year, they said expanding business activities should make increased taxes less burdensome.

Before urging additional levies, however, officials said Morgenthau will make every effort to pull down expenditures to the level of receipts.

Whether this can be accomplished, they asserted, will depend in large measure on congressional outlays for crop control and other activities.

On the reserve board side of the picture, Eccles was said to believe some provision should be made to curtail the government debt, now near an all-time high.

He consistently has advocated the retirement of debt in recovery periods in order that it may be expanded rapidly to meet emergency expenditures in depressions.

Recently the reserve board has taken several steps to keep interest rates low, and these have operated indirectly to bolster the government bond market.

Officials said that if the budget was balanced, the market for government obligations, as well as other securities, probably would become more stable, eliminating the desirability of many credit control operations.

SLEEPING BEAUTY UNLIKELY TO LIVE

Second Blood Transfusion Ordered in Attempt To Build Her Up for Operation.

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO, Sept. 28 — Hope for the recovery of Patricia Maguire waned today as physicians ordered a second blood transfusion for the dark-haired girl whose futile 67 month fight against sleeping sickness has been aggravated by pneumonia.

Dr. Eugene Traunt, said he hoped today's transfusion would build up her strength to permit an operation for an abdominal tumor.

The 32-year-old former stenographer, suffering from bronchial pneumonia for the second time in her five years and seven months illness, has been administered oxygen since yesterday.

Patricia was taken to the Presbyterian hospital Sunday, but the operation was postponed when pneumonia developed.

The suburban Oak Park sleeping beauty was given her first blood transfusion yesterday. Physicians said her condition then has shown little change. A suburban River Forest policeman, Bernard Gerard, was the blood donor, and additional policemen were expected to be called today.

Nurse Mary Meath said Patricia "took a turn for the worse" during the night.

Solemn Silence In League Hall Condemns Japan

Condemnation Resolution Voted by Advisory Group That Included U. S.

By The Associated Press
GENEVA, Sept. 28—The League of Nations assembly condemned Japanese aerial bombardment of China cities today by a moment of dramatic, solemn silence.

There was no formal vote.

The Aga Khan, delegate from India and newly-elected assembly president, interpreted as a vote of unanimous approval the silence that followed presentation of the Sino-Japanese advisory committee's resolution of condemnation.

The assembly acted swiftly on the resolution. It had been adopted yesterday by the league advisory group on which the United States is represented in a consultative capacity.

A letter accompanying the text of the measure, from Foreign Minister William Munters of Latvia, president of the 23-nation Sino-Japanese committee, explained its purpose was to give delegates not represented on the committee an opportunity to subscribe to it.

Julio Alvarez De Vayo, Republican Spain's league delegate, then took the floor to support the resolution. At the conclusion of his address, the Aga Khan announced the body had approved the condemnation without dissenting vote.

The brief condemnation of Japanese aerial tactics in the undeclared war in China as approved by the advisory committee, expressed "profound distress at the loss of life caused to innocent civilians including great numbers of women and children, as the result of such bombardment."

The resolution declared "no excuse can be made for such acts, which have aroused horror and indignation throughout the world," and "solemnly" condemned such attacks.

Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, China's delegate, had urged the league to brand Japan the "wrongdoer of the world" and an aggressor in the Sino-Japanese war—if the league could not go further to "enforce international law and principles of the (league) covenant."

The advisory committee's meeting scheduled for today was suddenly canceled with no reason publicly ascribed but reports were current that the leading delegations wished more time to explore the problem of what more could be done to deal practically with the far eastern conflict.

Owner of Auto Learns of Theft Via Telephone

Filling Station Attendant Recognizes Machine, Then Calls Owner.

A sharp-eyed filling station attendant, Russell Key, 21, gave police an early start on a search for a stolen automobile this morning, after beating the owner to the discovery that the vehicle had been taken.

The automobile is owned by Ben Saker of LaRue. He parked it on South Prospect street and at 8 o'clock this morning and went to an implement store to get some repair parts for farm machinery.

About 9 o'clock the telephone at the implement store rang and Mr. Key at the Miller Key filling station opposite the Marion County Children's home asked for Saker. Key, an acquaintance of Saker, asked if his car had been stolen.

"No, it's parked out here at the curb, Saker answered.

"Better look and make sure," the attendant suggested. While he waited on the line Saker looked and discovered the car was gone.

Marion Grid Teams To Meet Nearby Foes This Week

LaCrosse Takes It On Chin in Mat Tilt With Nenoff

Gil LaCrosse, the sullen Boston ex-gob who's been riding rough shod over mat opponents here for a long time, took it on the chin last night at the hands of the battling Bulgarian, Sevi Nenoff, in one of the feature bouts of the break-it-off-society meeting at the Marion Steam Shovel arena.

LaCrosse won the first fall but fell an easy prey to Nenoff's step-over toe hold and dropped both of the succeeding rounds.

Northwoodsman Alex Peslock of Montreal, Can., gained a two-fall win over Ken Hollis of Albuquerque, N. M., in the second headliner, when the southwestern husky was disqualified. Referee Verne Clark dished out the disqualification when Hollis punted his opponent from the ring and refused to let him return.

Bulgaria's Nenoff likely doesn't realize what he let himself in for by winning over LaCrosse. The victor of the match is to return here next week to meet he bumptious Italian, Martino Angelo, it was announced from the ringside at the start of the match. Angelo apparently isn't among Nenoff's acquaintances or the Bulgarian wouldn't have been quite so anxious for the win over his Boston opponent.

Nenoff last night cleverly used the ropes to his own advantage, both in seeking protection from LaCrosse's onslaughts and in applying pressure to his tough leg holds. LaCrosse, however, won the initial fall in a display of brute strength. He administered three body slams to his opponent and then stood on Nenoff's back and lifted an arm and leg skyward to make the Bulgarian say "uncle".

The first fall went 11 minutes and Nenoff came back to take the second in 12, with the tough leg hold that had LaCrosse limping to the dressing room. LaCrosse asked for additional time out but was refused by his hard-hearted opponent who was waiting for the kill. The ex-gob was cautious in the deciding round in his attempts to protect his injured left pin, but when it collapsed under him as he was about to administer a body slam, Nenoff gained the same leg hold to win the deciding round in five minutes.

Alex Peslock, making his debut here, showed Marion fans that his early toughness gained as a Canadian lumberjack carries him a long way in the profession mat game. Peslock battled 25 minutes through the first fall with Ken Hollis, before finally winning by catapulting his opponent off the ropes. The second fall was only 15 minutes old when Peslock was punted from the ring by his opponent and the disqualification followed when Hollis refused to let the Canadian return.

A disqualification likewise ended the scheduled 20-minute prelim, Charlie Carr of Little Rock, Ark., winning over Jimmy Spence of Boston, in 15 minutes. Spence slugged with all the fury of a madman and engaged the referee in a fast exchange of blows. It was the Bostonian's first appearance here.

HARDING PREPARES FOR SATURDAY TILT AT UPPER SANDUSKY

St. Mary To Journey to Crestline for Friday Afternoon Contest.

Preparation for week-end games is occupying the time spent in practice workouts by gridders of both Harding and St. Mary High schools. Harding will play its first game on a foreign gridiron by traveling to Upper Sandusky, Saturday afternoon, while the St. Mary team is booked to invade Crestline, Friday.

Harding, victorious 18 to 6, over Delaware Willis in a floodlight contest here last Friday, will be gunning for the second victory of the season when it treks into neighboring Wyandot county. The battle will bring Marion a step nearer the opening of the North Central Ohio league, set for Oct. 22, when the Presidents go to Ashland.

In the meantime, Harding will have two other non-league encounters, entertaining Lima South here Oct. 8 and Findlay invading the Marion gridiron Oct. 15. The Findlay game will be the last home contest until Nov. 12, when Harding returns home for N. C. O. clashes with Mt. Vernon and Bucyrus, on successive week-ends.

Harding Favored

Many Marion fans are expected to follow the team into Wyandot county Saturday, and the Cramermen, if they display the brand of football they are capable of, should return home with a victory. Harding's display of power and fighting spirit against Willis High, surprised fans who had witnessed the team's mediocre showing in the opener with Mt. Gilead.

Although Harding won the game over Willis, uptown coaches this week still weren't completely satisfied with some points of the Harding offense. One play in the first quarter apparently resulted from a lapse of memory. Harding held the ball on the Willis 40-yard line, with fourth down and a yard to go. The Presidents elected to run with the ball, which isn't so unorthodox as the fact that they failed to put a punter back, telegraphing their plan to the opponents.

That and other minor defects in Harding's football prowess are expected to be ironed out in practices this week. Coach Carl Cramer and his assistants, Bill Williams and George Nicol, last night sent the Harding gridders through a stiff workout session and planned to hold practices every evening, with a warm-up drill the afternoon before the game.

St Mary Has Strong Foe

St. Mary, playing a grid schedule for the first time in 13 years, is definitely proving that the Irish school has good football material, despite the fact that Coach Robert Kelly has such a small student group to choose from. The St. Mary team, opposing a veteran Tiffin Calvert aggregation last Saturday, was defeated, 32 to 0.

The Kellymen will face another tough club in the invasion of Crestline, the latter school being a member of the strong League of Six Nations. Nicholas Cafagno starting right halfback in St. Mary's opening game, is still out with an injured ankle, but is expected to report for practice later this week. Coach Kelly said today.

With the exception of Cafagno the team will be intact for the trip to Crestline, none of the players having suffered injuries in the battle with Calvert. Coach Kelly plans to hold practice sessions every day this week tapering off with a light workout Thursday.

NEW YORK
HIS NEW 5-YEAR CONTRACT WILL MAKE BILL THE HIGHEST PAID MANAGER...

COLONEL WILL TERRY, astute boss of the Giants, is probably the most disliked manager in baseball, but that apparently is no handicap.

Regardless of how the Giants finish this season, Boss Bill is sitting on top of the baseball world. He has signed a new contract at the princely salary of $40,000 per annum for five years—an ironclad $200,000 scrap of paper, with no "outs" or notice of release clauses.

Terry may not be exactly a likeable personality but his efficiency cannot be denied. His managerial record speaks for itself. Bill took a completely disorganized and hopeless crew from McGraw and won a world's championship in 1933. His Giants finished in the money the next two years and copped the flag again in 1936. Two pennants in four years, and always a contender.

This season the Giants are up there fighting for the flag again, though on paper the Cubs outclass them in playing strength.

That Terry must have something! Such consistent success can't be purely luck, and as a reward Bill will be the highest-paid pilot in the game next year.

GIANTS DEFEAT BEES TWICE, GAIN HALF GAME IN FLAG RACE

Cubs Win One Tilt but Lose Ground in Standings; Indians Beaten.

BY BILL BONI
Associated Press Sports Writer

Like the man trying to go up on the down escalator, the Cubs are sliding back each time they take a forward step.

They thought they'd taken a pretty good one when they whipped the Reds yesterday, 7-4—thought so, that is, until the Giants up and took both halves of their doubleheader with the Reds. All of which meant that, despite winning, Charley Grimm's grimmer-growing crew had lost another half game.

Today they were trailing by four and a half with only six left to play to the Giants' nine. If the Giants win four they're in no matter what the Cubs do. Similarly, any combination of four—Giant wins and Cub losses—will get the Terry-men into the throne room for the second time.

The picture, in fact, is getting prettier by the minute for the Giants, who proved by stopping the Bees, 5-4 and 3-1, that they can win two games on 10 hits with just as much eclat as the American League's World Series entry, the Yanks win one with 20.

While the Cubs were handing the Reds their seventh loss in a row, the Dodgers gracefully dropped their twelfth to the Phillies, 11-3, in a game remarkable chiefly for Chuck Klein's two homers and long Tom Winsett's debut as a pitcher. He gave up two of the runs.

The Indians, playing their last home game, bowed to the Tigers, 2-1. Buck Newsom, after beating the Athletics, 6-2, with a five-hitter in the first game tried to come back in the night-cap for the Red Sox, but gave up six walks in less than three innings and the Sox were shut out, 6-0.

The Yanks and Senators were rained out, while the other clubs were not scheduled.

Four-Hit Pitching Fails To Help Tribe

CHICAGO, Sept. 28 — Four-hit pitching wasn't enough so the Cleveland Indians dropped a 2-1 decision yesterday to close their 1937 home stand.

The Tribe, still in fourth place by one game since Boston broke even with the Athletics, opened today a three-day series against the White Sox in which, weather permitting, the teams will play five games.

Denny Galehouse and Willis Hudlin were the probable starters for Cleveland in today's twin bill.

CHUCK KLEIN, Phillies—Hooked two home runs and double, batting in four runs, in 11-3 rout of Dodgers.

ELDEN AUKER, Tigers — Submarined Indians into 2-1 submission allowing only seven hits.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—Signs of a jittery World Series: Joe McCarthy didn't go to Washington with the Yanks but stayed here personally to scout the Giants . . . Marcel Thil and his easy-to-look-at Georgette sail for France Friday. Thriftiest guy around is the photo finish chap at Rockingham Park. Only eight days of the 24 day meeting have gone into history, but more than half the races run so far have been decided by the silent films. Texas has gone hog wild over football . . . All three stations in Fort Worth broadcast Saturday's T. C. U.-Ohio State battle.

Lefty Gomez, first hurler in the majors to win 20 games this year, will open the World Series for the Yanks . . . Bob Olin vs. LeRoy Haynes, and Tony Galento vs. Lorenzo Pack feature tonight's big fight card in Philly . . . Don Lambeau, son of Curly, famous coach of the Green Bay Packers, is playing fullback for East Green Bay high, his pop's alma mater. Current prices for the Minnesota-Notre Dame game are ten bucks a pair and the chances are the ante will hit $25 by Oct. 30 . . . Looks like the pay-off year for scalpers who have been trying to capitalize on Minnesota's "hot team."

Bill Terry is laid up with something like influenza. Louisiana State students presented Florida an alligator mascot when the Florida team invaded Baton Rouge Saturday. . . We predict the Yanks will flail the stuffing out of Carl Hubbell in the World Series . . . but Cliff Melton is apt to stop the Yanks the first time he faces 'em . . . But Drew Shankle sports editor of the Columbus, Miss., Commercial Dispatch, wants to know what about Riley Smith? . . . All Riley did as the Giants was run 65 yards for a touchdown, kick two field goals and an extra for all Washington's points . . . Nice going, Riley. . . Edison, Central Jr. High Teams Play Thursday

Thomas A. Edison and Central Junior High school grid teams are scheduled to clash Thursday afternoon at the Harding stadium field in the second contest of a round-robin schedule of six games for the junior high aggregations. The game will get under way at 4 o'clock and will be the opening encounter for the Edison club.

Edison's team, defending champions of the 1936 season, is being coached this year by Carl E. Brickley, who succeeded C. H. Hanahans. Although the aggregation holds a slight edge in the fight for citywide junior high honors, it will need to step fast to keep apace with its hard fighting rivals.

In the junior high opener last week Central scored a 13 to 0 victory over the Vernon Heights representative and by winning became the most logical contender to upset last year's champs. The clash this week will have much to do with the final standings of the teams, and it will be first game for the West end gridders.

NO SPARES HERE

And it isn't the Big Apple she's doing either. Every roll is a strike for Maurine Kerns, Miami, Fla., woman bowler, who consistently scores near the 200 mark. And we promise to say nothing about form.

NEW STAR ROUTS O. W. U.

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 28 — Add the name of Richard (Bandy) Cassiano to your list of sophomore football heroes and then take a look at this boy who scored four touchdowns his first time out for Pitt. The 20-year-old curly haired son of an Albany, N. Y., hotel chef set a lot of tongues wagging by galloping 66, 48, 46 and 36 yards for touchdowns in the rout of Ohio Wesleyan Saturday. He also threw a 26-yard touchdown pass during the 20-odd minutes he was in the melee.

COLUMBUS, NEWARK START LITTLE WORLD SERIES WEDNESDAY

First 3 Games To Be Played in New Jersey, Remainder at Red Birds' Field.

By The Associated Press

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 28—It's "farm" team against "farm" team—representatives of the two major baseball chains—in the Little World Series opening in Newark tomorrow.

Winners of the pennants in the International League and American Association and survivors of extra-curricular playoff series, Newark and Columbus are the foes in the premier minor league classic. Newark is the No. 1 farm club in the New York Yankee chain, Columbus the top team in the far-flung St. Louis Cardinal domain.

Columbus won its place yesterday by beating Milwaukee, 10 to 4, to take the final American Association playoff, 4 games to 2. Newark's Bears, dubbed the "wonder team" of the minor circuits, acquired their Little World Series assignment last week, defeating first Syracuse and then Baltimore in the playoffs without losing a game after breezing into the International championship by a 25½ game margin.

Idle since Friday, the Bears plan a warm-up today against a team of Yankee chain prospects from lower classification clubs. The Red Birds entraining after their game in Milwaukee, will arrive tomorrow, only a few hours before game time at Ruppert stadium.

The first three games will be played here, night contests Thursday and Friday following the opener. The best-of-seven series will resume, if the weather man doesn't interfere, in Columbus Saturday night and continue there until it is decided.

STOCKS RALLY AFTER SLUMP

Losses of Two Points Converted Into Gains of Equal Size. Volume Low.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—Stocks made further rallying motions in today's market.

The list shook off profit selling after the opening and early losses running to two or more points were generally converted into gains of as much near the fourth hour. There were a few wide upturns. The trading volume was much smaller than in the preceding session.

The news brokers thought was without particularly inspiring qualities marketwise. Trading forces, however were inclined to stick to the buying side principally because of the belief the lengthy set-back would call for retracing a sizable portion of lost ground even though the major direction is still downward.

Bonds displayed mildly rising tendencies, but commodities were spotty. Rubber futures broke to new season's lows.

Prominent on the forward push were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Republic, Crucible Steel, American Rolling Mill, American Steel Foundries, Chesapeake & Ohio, Westinghouse, American Can, General Electric, American Telephone, Western Union, American Smelting, International Harvester, Montgomery Ward, U. S. Rubber, Goodyear, Goodrich and Chrysler.

The President's Bonneville dam speech, the only formal one planned for his western tour, appeared to have no great market effect. Much interest, though, was show in the chief executive's statement that a "definitely balanced" budget was expected by the next fiscal year—July 1, 1938.

FARM CHECK NEARS FINISH

Work in Connection With Soil Conservation To Be Completed This Week.

Checking of approximately 1,800 farms in Marion county whose owners are participating in the 1937 federal soil conservation program will be completed this week, County Farm Agent S. L. Anderson said today. The work has been in progress since the first week in August.

The only field work remaining to be done now is inspection of farms where additional soil building activities have been performed since the first check, he said. The additional work consists for the most part of plowing under of soy beans, growing of beans for hay, and application of lime.

The work of checking has been done by a corps of workers, one to each of the 13 townships in the county. The checking involved comparison of the crops planted with the map of the farm made during last year's program. From the map exact acreage of soil conservation and soil depleting crops for each farm can be determined.

The figures for each farm, now being compiled at the county agent's office, probably will be submitted to the state soil conservation office at Columbus in November. Checks in payment of the benefits are not expected until several days after the figures are submitted. The checks are returned to the county agent's office for distribution.

Last year farmers in the county were paid approximately $160,000 and their benefits this year can reach a maximum of about $275,000, according to calculations made this spring.

MARION CO. MEN TO ATTEND STOCK SHOW

Plans are being made by several Marion county residents to attend the annual National Dairy show and National Percheron show at the state fairgrounds in Columbus Oct. 9 to 16. County Farm Agent S. L. Anderson, who expects to attend, said advance tickets at half price are now being distributed by his office, the Farm Bureau, county vocational agriculture teachers, J. H. Wolcanger of the county dairy cattle association, living on the Prospect-Richwood road, and E. A. Williams, county grange deputy.

For most farmers in this vicinity the show probably will be the only one they will have an opportunity to see, officials said. The last national show was held in Ohio 20 years ago.

Mr. Anderson said he has received no definite information that any Marion county breeders will exhibit in either the cattle or percheron show. The advance ticket sale ends Oct. 5.

MARION MINISTERS ATTEND MEETING

Rev. J. A. Carriker of the Forest Lawn Presbyterian church and Rev. James M. Fisher, Presbyterian minister, attended the annual fall meeting of the Marion Presbytery today at the Berlin Presbyterian church near Delaware.

Dr. Harry G. Finney, pastor of the First church of Mt. Gilead and moderator of the presbytery, presided.

The presbytery has 50 ministers and 7,500 members in 36 churches in Marion, Morrow, Delaware, Crawford, Wyandot, Logan, Hardin, Champaign and Union counties.

ANOTHER CHERRY TREE IN BLOOM

Marion county should have a bumper second crop of cherries if all the trees now in bloom aren't blasted by frost.

The latest tree reported abloom and in new leaf is on the farm of Mr. and Mrs. John Hocker of nine miles west of Marion on the Meeker-Agosta road. The tree bore heavily in the spring.

MEN TEACHERS IN SCHOOLS TO MEET

The annual fall round-up meeting of men of the county school teaching staffs was to be held this afternoon and evening at the Pleasant township school. About 50 were expected to attend the affair which was to begin at 6 o'clock. Games and contests were to be included on the program of festivities. Lunch was to be served by members of the domestic science class of Pleasant township school under the direction of Miss Gladys Uncapher, instructor.

SPEED RECORD SET IN JURY TRIAL HERE

Verdict Within Five Minutes Made Possible by Settlement of Case.

A record for brevity in Marion county common pleas court jury trials for recent years was set today when a jury was impanelled, a witness heard and a verdict rendered in less than five minutes. The suit was that of Marion A. Leffler of 128 Sharpless court against the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. for compensation for injuries suffered while employed by the company.

The reason for the brevity was that although the litigants had agreed on a settlement before the trial opened, the company requested that the records show that a verdict had been rendered by a jury for the company. Z. P. Davis, attorney for Mr. Leffler, said the settlement was a compromise. Paul M. Jones represented the company. The verdict was directed by the court after Mr. Leffler told of the settlement.

Mr. Leffler asked compensation for the period from Sept. 23, 1930, on. He said he had been compensated for the period from the date of the injury, Sept. 8, 1935, to Sept. 23.

The second suit set for trial this morning before Judge Hector S. Young, without a jury, was also settled, attorneys announced. It was the suit of Joseph Brundige of Waldo township for $426 damages against Allan Roberts of near Waldo in connection with a wheat combining contract. Roberts was represented by Denithen & Michel and Brundige by Paul D. Smith.

The two suits were the first scheduled for trial in the September term of court. It was also announced that the suit of Joseph C. Shaffer against the city for $2,000 damages, set for Friday, has been taken out of assignment. Shaffer, represented by William Kay Davis, alleged he was permanently injured as a result of a fall into a sidewalk hole about three inches deep, 13 feet long and four feet wide, in front of 813 Davids street.

SCHEDULE OF TAX PENALTIES RECEIVED

Treasurer Cole Has Official Information on Delinquent Payments.

County Treasurer Homer D. Cole announced today he has received official information of the new state law affecting abatement of tax penalties. The law became effective early this summer but Mr. Cole was not officially notified of its nature until recently.

It provides the following schedule of penalties after the closing date of the tax collections: 2½ per cent for the first 30 days; 5 per cent for the next 30 days, 7½ per cent for the next 30; and 10 per cent 90 days after the collection closes.

In the past the full 10 per cont penalty has been imposed immediately after the collection closed. Mr. Cole expressed the belief that the law will be repealed before long in view of the fact that it retards 90 days the work of the auditor in setting up duplicates for the next collection.

Former Policewoman, Vassar Grad, Ready To Tackle Jane Addams' Job

By LYDIA GRAY SHAW
Associated Press Writer.

NEW YORK—The jovial, efficient woman destined to succeed Jane Addams as head of Chicago's famous Hull House came out of her inner office in the congested old municipal building and greeted us with a hearty handshake.

Without benefit of buzzers or secretaries, we—the photographer and I—found ourselves within a large-map-lined room and in the midst of an informal interview, almost before we knew it.

Charlotte Carr, chief of New York City's Emergency Relief Bureau, talked unhurriedly and readily—about her days as policewoman in a New York industrial area, secretary of labor in Pennsylvania, and problem-solver for New York's half million relief cases.

Eager for New Work.

But not about Hull House, to which she goes in October. She doesn't feel she knows enough about it to talk—yet.

"Don't say I'm going to fill the shoes of Jane Addams," she admonished. "No one could do that. I can only hope to carry out the social principles she instituted. And that's going to be a tough job."

I asked: "Won't life be quieter at Hull House than here at the ERB?" (Miss Carr has weathered two stormy years in the bureau, the target of aldermanic charges that communists influenced her relief-giving.)

"People," she responded, "make the atmosphere, don't you think? I certainly don't consider my move to Hull House a step toward retirement. There'll be plenty to work for and fight for. Hull House can be a tremendous influence in Chicago, particularly in difficult labor situations."

Knows Industry First-Hand.

Miss Carr's views on labor are close-ups.

She saw the effects of long working hours on factory girls when she patrolled New York streets in an industrial area. "My interest in industry began when I saw those girls coming out of factories at all hours of the night, after working 12 or 14 hours. Then it was easy to comprehend problems of delinquency."

She saw the importance of organized labor when she was assistant employment manager of a new York concern where organized workers on one floor worked an eight-hour day, and unorganized workers on the floor above worked ten hours.

"My belief in trade unions is an axiom," she said unqualifiedly.

She worked in a factory. She visited factories in England. She handled cases for the State Charities Aid association, the New York Bureau of Women in Industry, and the Pennsylvania Bureau for Women and Children.

Gives Credit To Luck.

"I've never come to any conclusion through generalization," she said. "I don't have to. I've seen the thing too clearly in real life."

Most remarkable of all was her first job. Matron of an orphan asylum immediately after graduation from Vassar. "But I won't tell you where it was," she chuckled.

Incidentally, she finished Vassar in three years. Not because she was bright, she insists, but because of super-boarding-school preparation. Specialized in economics, though with no great intensity.

"I didn't prepare myself particularly for my career," she explained. "And most of it has been amazing good luck."

TOUGH WORK BUT WHY WORRY?
Charlotte Carr smiles as she talks about her new job as head of Chicago's Hull House, but she expects to find "plenty to work and fight for."

YOU WILL LIKE TRADING AT SCHAFFNER'S

GETTING YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

P. T. Barnum became the greatest showman this country ever knew. He built his circus on the idea that the public wanted a good show. His side shows were built on the idea that the public likes to be fooled.

That is all right for a circus, but in the furniture business we do not have side shows—the entire show is under one big tent, and to build a growing business we have only one rule . . .

Customers must receive their money's worth, and if the merchandise should prove deficient, we will protect the customer. It is by protecting our customers — by always making sure they receive their money's worth — that we have been able to grow.

When you choose your homefurnishings at Schaffner's, you know you get your money's worth. You know, too, you receive the latest ideas, the better values, in good quality homefurnishings. We want you always to be glad you came to Schaffner's.

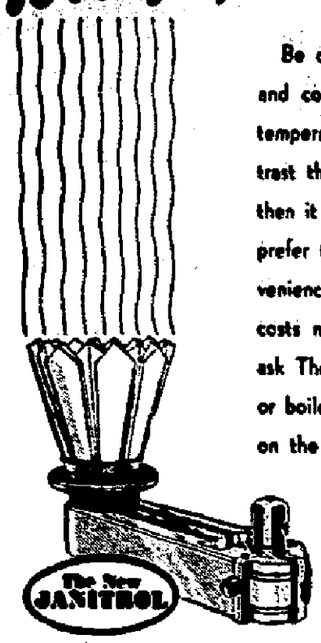
Let Automatic Gas Heat Match Outside Temperatures

To Keep You Like This - Instead Of Like This



Be carefree about your heating. Be comfortable and enjoy life. These warm days and cool nights present no problem to homes heated automatically with gas. Even temperatures are maintained inside the home without a thought of the furnace. Contrast this picture with homes where fires must be built each time heat is needed, and then it is almost impossible to obtain the proper temperature. No wonder many families prefer to shiver rather than start the furnace before real winter sets in. These inconveniences and discomforts are so unnecessary — especially when you consider gas heat costs no more than old fashioned methods, all incidental costs considered. Why not ask The Gas Company for a free heating survey? The cost of converting your furnace or boiler into a modern gas-fired unit can be easily determined, and a reliable estimate on the cost of heating your home with gas will be furnished.

This Janitrol gas-fired unit fits into your present furnace or boiler to make it an automatic gas heating plant.

DINGLEDINE DENIES PART IN SLAYINGS

Claims He and Son Crouched Beneath Steps During Battle at Crystal Lake.

By The Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD, O., Sept. 28—Harry Dingledine, 54, vehemently protested today that neither he nor his son, Henry, 25, took part in a gun fight at Crystal Lake Sept. 3 in which two officers were killed.

Brought here yesterday from Royal Oak, Mich., where he was arrested, the elder Dingledine contended that he and Henry crouched under the basement steps of a cottage while Harry Chapman and Robert Cornette exchanged gunfire with the officers. Cornette, Patrolman Martin Randolph and Chief Deputy Sheriff Edward Furry were killed and two others were wounded.

Police Lieut. Walter Sweet quoted Dingledine as saying he and his son ran to an automobile during the firing and started to drive away when Henry was shot. Dingledine said he took his son to a Marshall, Mich., hospital where he was found and arrested the next day.

Dingledine, whose arraignment date has not been set, said both he and his son also were innocent of a holdup-abduction here which led to the gun battle. Indictments charge first degree murder, robbery and abduction against Harry Dingledine.

COURT SEAT READY FOR JUSTICE BLACK

Name Plate on His Door and Chair as Alabaman Nears U. S. Shore.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28—Except for such minor details as washing the windows in his office, everything is ready for Justice Hugo L. Black's debut in the supreme court on Monday.

Nationwide interest has developed over his seating because of allegations that he is a member of the Ku Klux Klan.

Name plates reading "Mr. Justice Black"—in ebony letters on bronze—already have been screwed to a massive oaken door and anchored to the back of a judicial chair.

Because nothing has been heard from him about what kind of chair he wants, the court has picked one—a stoutly upholstered unswiveled affair.

Similar models are being used this year by Chief Justice Hughes and Justices Sutherland, Brandeis and Cardozo. The others have styles of their own selection.

Court attaches made it plain, however, that should Justice Black ask for another chair or bring in one of his own, they will make the substitution overnight.

The newest member of the court is scheduled to arrive tomorrow at Norfolk, Va., after a European vacation.

Thus far, he has maintained strict silence on the klan allegations. Some observers thought he might continue that policy in the belief the furore soon will die down. Others were of the opinion that, after communicating with President Roosevelt, he would issue a statement.

JEWELL TO GET BID TO PAROLE BOARD

Davey Picks Delaware Judge To Succeed Leland S. Dougan.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 28—Gov. Martin L. Davey said today that he would offer a position on the state parole board to Judge H. W. Jewell of Delaware, dean of common pleas judges in Ohio.

Gov. Davey said he would confer this afternoon with Judge Jewell, a Republican, adding "and I hope he will accept my offer of the position."

The vacancy was caused by the governor's removal recently of Leland S. Dougan, chairman of the board, at expiration of his term.

Judge Jewell, sitting by assignment in Chillicothe several weeks ago, ousted Mayor James E. Ford, who was accused of permitting the operation of slot machines in the city.

LOG HOPPING AID TO ARMY ROOKIES

Exercise Used To "Straighten Out Kinks"

ATLANTA—To cultivate a better posture, the army has a suggestion. It is log-hopping, a simple exercise to straighten kinks.

Col. A. B. Dockery, Georgia-Florida recruiting officer, says the idea first was devised to remedy the "cotton pickers' slouch" of southern army recruits.

"When a recruit just can't seem to realize he's not behind the plow," Col. Dockery explained, "we put him through the same paces we use in training horses to step high. We walk him over logs. That works."

The cotton pickers' slouch is just one of the many incorrect postures the army has to remedy to make its newcomers march with precision.

There is the "office sitters' slump," which is achieved by sitting hunped over a desk, chin protruding, chest sunken and legs wrapped around those of the chair.

"People seem to freeze that way and when they stand up they have the perfect slump," Col. Dockery said.

He added there were any number of combinations between these extremes. Most of them, such as the average round-shouldered man, can be cured by drills and setting up exercises. With band music added to give "pep and precision in movement" most cases of bad posture can be cured.

NATURE ACTING UP

More Oddities Added To Marion County's Fruit and Berry List.

The fourth report of unusual antics of Marion county trees this fall came yesterday from Harry Benzler of seven miles south of Marion on Linn road. Mr. Benzler said that for the last two weeks a Roman Beauty apple tree in his yard has been blooming.

He also reported that on his farm the blackberry picking season is just now drawing to a close, while usually the year is ended about the first of September. The exact cause of the abnormal second blooms is not known, but amateur botanists are blaming it on the weather.

STRATEGIC LOYALIST TOWN IS CAPTURED

Troops on Mop-Up Duties After Sacking City in Northern Spain.

By The Associated Press

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Sept. 28—Spanish insurgents followed up the occupation of strategic Rivadesella with clean-up operations today in surrounding villages of that sector of the Gijon or Asturian front.

An insurgent communique said Gen. Francisco Franco's men were trying to nurry the campaign against Gijon, the Republican government's last seaport-stronghold in the northwest.

Rivadesella, Biscayan fishing port about 30 air miles east of Gijon, fell yesterday despite strong resistance by the government or Asturian troops.

Asturian fortifications on the east bank of the Sella river and eight nearby villages also fell to the insurgents.

The insurgents reported a fresh government defeat and fresh insurgent advances in separated sectors of the Aragon, or northwestern battlefront. Government attacks were said o have been repulsed near Orna near Fuentes.

New positions were wrested from the government in the Villamayor sector, the communique said.

Government advices on the upper Aragon fighting were lacking. It said that heavy rain and snowfall had slowed up activities. The government, however, reported insurgents had been repulsed south of Madrid after several hours of night fighting.

JUDGE REFUSES GUILT ADMISSION

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Sept. 28—Federal Judge Samuel H. West refused today to accept from Ray Schauver, 19, of Lorain, O., a plea of guilty to a charge of kidnaping a police officer following a bank robbery.

The judge declined the plea, he explained, because of the serious penalty involved.

Schauver is accused of robbing a Woodville, O., bank of $2,100 on Sept. 7, shooting Patrolman Myron Gibson, of Elyria, and kidnaping Patrolman Cellallan Andress, Gibson's companion. Andress captured Schauver by releasing the getaway automobile's steering wheel and grappling with his abducter for possession of two revolvers.

MONEY STOLEN FROM RESIDENCE

Intruders entered the residence of Roland Thomas of 771 York street last night while members of the family were away from home and took a loot of $9.00, it was reported to police. The theft occurred about 8:30 o'clock and entrance was apparently gained by using a key, officers were told. The doors to the home were locked when the family returned and no break-in had been made. The money was taken from a purse which had been left in a kitchen cabinet.

3 DEPUTIES OUSTED IN CLEVELAND BREAK

Fourth Suspended by Sheriff Who Claims His Rules Were Not Observed.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Sept. 28—Sheriff Martin L. O'Donnell, discharging three deputies and suspending a fourth, said today he was satisfied a jail break of three escaped Missouri convicts "could have been avoided if the rules and orders given by me had been followed."

The sheriff's action came as a federal bureau of prisons inspector came from Washington to investigate the escape, and as Mayor Frank C. Cain of Cleveland Heights urged that O'Donnell resign.

The three discharged for the escape last Wednesday of the Bird brothers, Charles and Frank, and James Widmer, were:

John Somerville, assistant chief jailor in charge when the arm-ed flight took place; Martin F. Singleton, in charge of issuance of visitor's cards, and Arthur Weitzel, stationed at the jail's fourth floor exit.

At the same time, the sheriff suspended for 20 days Anthony Zak, from whom Charles Bird took the keys to the cell block that held the other two prisoners, awaiting demands for their death on charges of kidnaping while engaged in bank robbery.

Employe of Paper in Mayoralty Election Battle Points to Bullet Marks on Car.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Sept. 28 — A reporter-circulation manager for a weekly suburban newspaper, which is engaged in a mayoralty election battle, claimed today four shots were fired at him while he distributed special copies of the Euclid Observer.

Pat Pietro, 32, who reported the alleged incident to police of the village east of Cleveland, pointed out bullet marks on his automobile.

He said he was driving about 30 miles an hour on East 260th street when "the first thing I heard was a shot and glass crashing."

"I ducked and turned to the right," he continued, "ramming up over the curb. When I looked down the street I saw a coupe, but it was so far away I couldn't obtain the license number."

The newspaper is opposed to the administration of Mayor Charles R. Ely. Pietro said he had been told to "lay off" attacks. Euclid police said they were investigating Pietro's claims.

ther inland than at present, and give an outlet to the enormously valuable agricultural and mineral products of Oregon and Washington and Idaho."

Its generators will be turned on in a few months.

Standing on a decorated platform beside the project's administration building, about a quarter of a mile from the dam, the President also told the thousands grouped before him his program would not destroy individual liberties.

"My conception of liberty," he said, "does not permit an individual citizen or group of citizens to commit acts of depredation against nature in such a way as to harm neighbors, and especially harm the future generations of Americans."

Looking out over the crowd swarmed on a greensward with the Columbia basin gorge and mountains as a backdrop, the President re-defined his eight "little TVA" proposals and struck at those who claimed it would result in a "totalitarian or authoritarian" form of government.

Scattered applause and laughter came first when the President rebuked those who objected to governmental interference with what they "miscall" the liberty of the individual.

Handclapping and cheering also greeted his statement favoring the "widest possible" use of power developed at great federal projects like Bonneville, Grand Coulee and others.

The arrangements with the university in bringing the educational consultant here is the first of its kind to be tried in any rural school system in Ohio, Mr. Mills said.

FIVE BOYS ADMIT BURGLARY IN WALDO

Deputy Sheriff Says Filling Station Theft, Nine in Delaware County Solved.

Burglary of a Waldo filling station and nine other cases of breaking and entering in Delaware county were believed cleared up by Deputy Sheriff Gene Geissler today with the report of the confession of five Delaware county boys in Delaware county juvenile court. Deputy Geissler said he investigated at Delaware yesterday and found that the boys, ranging in age from 15 to 19, had admitted the Marion county break-in and nine others.

The break-in at Waldo occurred in the week of Aug. 8 at a filling station at the intersection of routes 98 and 23. A mint vending machine and a peanut vending machine were broken into and two gallons of oil taken.

Deputy Geissler said the boys have been placed on probation in Delaware county. He said he may contact Juvenile Judge Oscar Gast here to discuss possible action in Marion county court against the boys. The boys had been held in Delaware county for about a month, he said.

RUSSIAN ENVOY TO CHINA FLIES HOME to be a direct response to a Chinese appeal for aid.)

In the first claims of progress in several days in the conflict with China, the Japanese army announced that an armored train had pushed 50 miles south of captured Paotingfu in north China, putting the most advanced Japanese point 130 miles south of Peiping on the railroad to Hankow.

On the Shanghai front the Japanese claimed advances of 300 to 500 yards all along the entire Lotien and Liuhong sector.

At Tokyo, meanwhile, Japan was placed on an unlimited war footing by a series of decrees affecting virtually every able-bodied man in the empire.

Army Service Prolonged

The war ministry issued the long-prepared military ordinance "No. 41" which indefinitely prolonged military service for all officers and men on both the active and reserve lists. The decree ordered all soldiers belonging to mobilized troops at home or to units already stationed in China to remain in service "until further notification."

The extension also was made applicable to special voluntary officers. Ordinary officers and men on reserve and the first conscript reserve list whose term of service was scheduled to end in 1938 were ordered to serve an additional year.

General national mobilization has not yet been ordered, however.

The streets of Tokyo and the railroad station, meanwhile, were alive with marching men and patriotic crowds. Apparently there was more military activity than at any time since the outbreak of the undeclared war in north China on July 7.

BELLBOY GIVES CLUE TO KIDNAP SUSPECT

She said Ross had noticed a car following them on the 50-mile trip to Chicago and had stopped to let it pass. The pursuing car stopped and a youth about 20 emerged, covered them with a pistol and said:

"This is a snatch. My boss told me to bring you along."

Capt. Gilbert said the youth's nervousness stamped him as an amateur. The reference to the "boss" was presumably an attempt to make the kidnaping appear as the plot of a "master mind," he added.

Freddie's Parents Resume Battle For His Custody

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 28—Life is just trouble, trouble, trouble and worry, worry, worry for young Freddie Bartholomew.

Right in the middle of his court fight for more money from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer came mama and papa Bartholomew, wanting to take him away from his aunt Mylicent.

Attorneys for Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Llewellyn Bartholomew, Freddie's parents, filed notice in superior court yesterday they would petition to have his adoption by his aunt last April 3 set aside on ground of fraud. Hearing was set for Friday.

Attorney Avery Blount explained the parents believed a signed statement in which the aunt promised to return their son at their request was binding despite the adoption, to which they consented.

To top off all Freddie's cares, while lawyers fiddle and Freddie's career burns, another lad with an Oxford accent is taking his place on the screen.

Ronald Sinclair, 14, of Dundedin, New Zealand, owes his job and his name to the Bartholomew case.

ONLY FEW WOMEN NOW ON WPA ROLLS

All Projects End With Exception of Record Work Employing Half Dozen.

With the exception of a half-dozen women working on a records project, all women WPA employes were taken from the rolls yesterday, Miss Jean O'Neill county supervisor of women's and professional projects, said today. The removal of the women was necessary because of the closing down of three projects Saturday and Monday.

The projects, one for courthouse cleaning employing 50 women, one for sewing with 10 women and another for household training with 18 women, were not renewed in time because of a misunderstanding among WPA, city and county officials, it was brought out at a recent conference.

Miss O'Neill said that two women's projects signed recently by the city to employ 72 women, probably will not start before Nov. 15, meaning that the women now off the rolls will not be back before that time.

Frank S. Burns, county relief director, said many of the discharged women are eligible for direct relief grants until the WPA projects start again. Whether the relief administration can accept many more clients is a matter of doubt in view of limited relief funds, he said.

GREAT BRITAIN HAS BUSIEST RAILWAYS

Traffic Nearly Five Times That of United States.

By International News Service

LONDON — British railway tracks are used to a greater extent than those of any country in the world.

According to the latest available figures there are nearly twice as many passengers and goods per mile of rout track in this country as there are in France, and more than five times as many as run on the railways of the United States.

Railways are the world's most tireless industry, and the steel tracks of British railways are seldom idle. Day and night they operate with a steadiness which no other industry in the world can equal.

The British railways work to the minute, and intense suburban services are run to the second. Electric trains pass along London suburban lines at the rate of nearly two a minute and on the main lines express trains move with the smooth precision of giant battleships in line ahead, with twice the speed of the fastest destroyer, protected by modern signals controlled from 10,300 manned signal boxes.

In London alone more than 7,000 passenger trains arrive and leave seven main line terminals every day, an average of five trains a minute throughout the 24 hours. Waterloo handles 1,500 passenger trains a day; both London Bridge and Clapham Junction deal with 2,500 trains each, while Liverpool Street, with its 1,200 trains, claims to possess the most intensive steam operated suburban service in the world.

Across the border in Scotland, Glasgow's three principal stations deal with more than 2,500 passenger trains every weekday. At Manchester 800 trains are dealt with, at Liverpool 540, at Bristol 300, and at York 330.

HEARING ON BANK PROPOSAL DELAYED

Plan to Let Trustees Take Over Commercial Bank Pending.

Hearing on an application of S. H. Squire, state superintendent of banks, to turn over $115,187.27 in remaining assets of the closed Commercial bank of Marion to a committee of trustees for benefit of the creditors has been continued indefinitely in common pleas court at the request of Howard F. Guthery, special counsel for the bank. The hearing was to have been held yesterday.

The delay is the result of difficulty in obtaining double liability judgments against stockholders before the assets are turned over, Mr. Guthery said. The creditors are public funds, a few scattered individuals and three Marion banks. The committee of trustees to whom it was proposed the assets were to be entrusted includes Edson C. Bush, Grover C. Snyder, Frank C. Gegenheimer and Fred E. Guthery. Claims against the bank total $119,508.56.

FLAT TIRES CHIEF WOE OF MOTORISTS

By International News Service

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Flat tires, numbering 8,500,000, caused most trouble to American motorists last year, according to statistics made public by Todd Stoops, secretary-manager of the Hoosier Motor Club.

He said the reason was because the drivers continue to operate with tires on which the rubber is worn past the danger point.

There were approximately 4,000,000 complete breakdowns of engines and some 3,258,000 cases of battery failure, he added.

The number of cars frozen up last year was 181,262, a sharp drop over the 540,000 reported in 1935.

Other headaches for motorists included 406,000 gas line complaints, 4,000,000 cases of ignition trouble, including systems drowned out in rainy weather, and 1,490 instances of starter trouble.

"Although there is an average of about one filling station for every mile of surfaced highway, approximately 1,500,000 motorists ran out of gasoline last year, an increase of 50 per cent over 1935," Stoop said.

A chemical preparation has been invented to be added to dish water to remove all soapy film from dishes and rid them of germs.

BOY CYCLES 4,200 MILES IN A YEAR

By United Press

STONINGTON, Conn.—A year ago, John G. Sousa, more familiarly known as Johnny Lulu, bought a bicycle with a speedometer on it. The other day he looked at the mileage recorder to find he had cycled 4,200 miles "for the fun of it."

Johnny works all day on the borough's garbage and rubbish truck. The 4,200 miles were pedalled nights and Sundays for diversion. His trips were to cities as far as Providence, R. I., a distance of nearly 70 miles. Johnny, realizes telegraph boys, in the course of their duties, may roll up more miles yearly than he does.

D. A. V. FLOWER SALE IS SET

Disabled Veterans Will Benefit from Project Arranged for Saturday.

Saturday will be annual "Forget-Me-Not" day in Marion.

The drive will be conducted by Marion Chapter No. 22, Disabled American Veterans of the World War, and the auxiliary, to raise money for social service and emergency relief purposes.

Volunteer saleswomen and salesgirls will be on the streets all day Saturday, with the little blue flowers which the organization gives in return for each contribution.

J. A. Morrison of 205 Short street is general chairman of the committee in charge.

"Big dividend returns will come to this community by the public's investment in this service program and by wearing a Forget-Me-Not Saturday and the public will at the same time honor the dead and remember the disabled," Mr. Morrison said.

The Marion chapter is one of about 700 similar chapters throughout the country. Each is interested primarily in the welfare of the war-time disabled veterans of its own community.

By pooling a portion of the income of each chapter, the organization is able to maintain its own representative in Washington, D. C., to look after interests of disabled veterans in all communities.

For this purpose 30 per cent of the net proceeds of the Saturday drive will be sent to the national headquarters, and out of that amount the national office will be assisted in maintaining a national rehabilitation chairman and several assistants in Washington in addition to a nationally-paid regional officer. The remaining 70 per cent of the proceeds of the sale will remain in Marion.

Texas Uses Psychology To Make Roads Safer

Second in a Series.
By The Associated Press

DALLAS, Tex.—The Texas highway department, intent on cutting down auto accidents, believes in signs—signs that read like this:

"IF YOU DRINK DON'T DRIVE—IF YOU DRIVE DON'T DRINK."

The department has posted them at intervals on all main highways—and is convinced they have a psychological effect in reducing accidents.

"I've heard much favorable comment on their erection," says L. G. Phares, chief of the state highway patrol. "It pays to advertise in traffic safety campaigns just as in business. We should keep the danger of reckless driving before the people constantly."

Many Texas towns go the department one better and post a list of traffic deaths at their principal street intersections.

One such town in Beaumont, whose traffic safety record is attracting nationwide attention after a bad year in 1936. Beaumont keeps its citizens safety conscious with a daily "safety score board" on the city hall lawn. On it are recorded the number of accidents, injuries and deaths of 1937 and the corresponding figures for last year.

Marriage Meddlers

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge Tries to Rest as She Contemplates Future.

LILLIAN and I loafed luxuriously all day after our return from the hospital and the amusing combat of wills which Baby Faith had staged with Katherine.

For me it was the let-down which comes when one's problems have been solved—temporarily, at least. Junior and Roderick, after their "brainstorm" of disobedience and fighting, were safe in Harry Underwood's wise care; Marion and Carolyn, on a sightseeing excursion with Bill and Hank, were giving the inarticulate but lovable young boys the blissful time I had coveted for them; Dicky was safely on his way back from trailing the "Canadian collegiate menace" back to their native haunts; and, best of all, Lillian and I had insured that Mary's separation from Noel should not be made unbearable by Princess Olina's presence in the Veritzen menage.

There were only two shadows on my mental horizon. I could not help a qualm at the thought of what my impulsive offer of sanctuary to Queen Olga and Princess Olina might mean to the life of my family.

I could count on my father to approve of anything I might choose to do. Besides, he could escape to the seclusion of his own suite—always kept as inviolate as a hermitage for him—at any minute he chose to withdraw from the family circle.

But I had renewed visions of what complications might arise with my irascible and haughty mother-in-law, my tempestuous maid, Katie, to say nothing of the two obstreperous small boys who were to be pupils of the exiled queen and her daughter.

The other shadow was darker. It was that of Edith Fairfax's announced return to New York, her insistence that I engineer her return to the art magazine, whose ownership she shared with Dicky, and her open declaration in a letter to me that my husband was in some sort of a discreditable "jam."

Katherine Helpful.

But I resolutely put both shadows away from me. The lesser one, that of complications in my home, I could leave to Katherine, who would be back at the farm with the children as soon as vacation was over, and whose diplomacy and skill in adjusting delicate situations could well be employed, I often felt her, in national or world affairs.

Lillian had promised to attend to Edith, and had already wired her, cautioning her to silence and rational behavior if she wish d any aid in her plan to come back to New York. And what Lillian promised was as good as performed.

I sank deeper into my lounging chair, and gave myself up to the loveliness of the lake and the shore line behind it, knowing that I had but one more day in which to fill my soul with its familiar beauty.

It was a long, restful day, but perfection always gets a bit monotonous, and I think Lillian was as glad as I to see our wanderers when they returned to the camp.

Harry and Boys Return.

Harry Underwood returned first, escorting the small boys, both tired to the point of exhaustion, but blissfully happy. Then came the older quartet, Bill and Hank much in the condition of their small brother, Roderick, while Marion and Carolyn were patently thrilled with that headiest of all draughts for young girls, masculine admiration and adoration.

Dicky returned to camp last, just in time for dinner, so we postponed all questioning until the meal had been eaten. But, when we gathered on the veranda overhanging the lake, after the small boys had gone to bed, Lillian whispered to me in consternation:

"Warn Dicky not to be surprised at anything the girls say."

I repeated the warning from the side of my mouth to my husband, sitting next to me, but I did not have a chance to tell him the reason for the warning, and he muttered back an impatient, "What the devil?" just as Marion caroled sweetly:

"Uncle Dicky, did you trail those dangerous Canadians back to their lairs and make sure they wouldn't come back and make Carolyn and me forget our Sunday school lessons?"

Your Health

BY DR. R. S. COPELAND

Cold.

WITHIN THE past few weeks there has been an unusual prevalence of colds. Whenever the weather is extreme or unseasonable, an increase in the number of these cases is expected.

Public health officials are always concerned about sudden outbreaks of severe colds, because they can not forget the influenza, the "flu" epidemic of 1918 and 1919. Many of my readers will recall the spread of that dreadful disease which caused more deaths throughout the world than many of the so-called "plagues" of history.

Great strides have been made in research in this field. But still the common cold, grippe and influenza puzzle us. The actual causes of these disorders are still unknown.

But it is possible to guard against infections of the nose, throat and upper portion of the breathing equipment and in the beginning to control them. No matter how trivial a cold may seem in the beginning, it is always best to "doctor" it immediately. By all means consult your physician who will outline the necessary treatment.

If fever is present, the patient should remain in bed. Bear in mind that a few days' rest in bed may check the progress of what at first appears as a trivial cold, but which actually in the beginning of an influenza attack.

The victim of influenza usually complains of chilly sensations, fever and prostration. If such signs are present, rest in bed and medical attention are urgent. Frequently there is a dry hacking cough with pain in the chest.

Influenza in and of itself may be a mild disease. But it must never be accepted as a trivial thing. Too often, if neglected, it leads to dangerous complications. It is especially serious when it afflicts the very young and the aged.

The sufferer from influenza should be kept away from other members of the family. Let me urge upon you that the disease in its acute state is highly contagious, rapidly spreading from one person to another.

Complete rest in bed, proper nourishment and the taking of medicines prescribed by the doctor are essential if rapid recovery is to be expected. Early attention will prevent such complications as pneumonia, middle-ear infections, nasal sinusitis, bronchitis and other serious infections.

IT'S ODD But It's Science

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor.

WOODS HOLE, Mass.—The hen which started the dispute about which came first—chicken or egg—and why does a chicken cross the road now gives science a new one.

"Why do chicken feathers have twins?"

The twinning of these feathers and its possible usefulness in helping to a better understanding of biology are reported by Dr. Frank

R. Lillie, of the University of Chicago, in the Collecting Net.

The technical name of the twin is the "after-feather." Most of the feathers of chickens have these twins. They lie underneath the outer feather which is their other half. There are no twins for tail feathers, flight feathers or, as a rule, hackles.

The twin feather is due to an actual division of a single center, from which only one feather might be expected to grow. But after the division into two centers, neither feather grows alone from its own center. Half of it grows from its own center, the other half from its twin's center.

Nothing Was Lost.

ALMOST unnoticed in the echoing tumble of struggling armies is a faint hum of talk from the League of Nations in Geneva.

The statesmen huddled around council tables in the palace built to commemorate the dream of international security based on agreement know they have lost influence, so they aren't trying to make themselves heard

The remarkable thing is that they have not. The League of Nations has met the fate foretold by cynics—another way of saying cynicism has enjoyed a triumph in the post-war world. The vision of peace secured by international agreement and law has been blown away by the acrid breath of militarism in Asia, in Africa, and in Europe.

The league assembly is now in its 18th annual session. The problems it faces are of vital importance, but it can do nothing about them. It has ceased to be the source and center of international action. Yet, the assembly has convened. Most of the nations of the world still are represented. This must mean something.

It does mean something. It means that the League of Nations, with all its faults, its corruption and its foolish dependence on the good intentions of powerful members who can not afford to have good intentions, enabled a few men to see that the alternative to international destruction was international cooperation.

It supplied mankind with the only means it ever had to challenge the hitherto undisputed might of warriors. Little wonder that scoffers predicted from the outset that it would fail; the dream was too ambitious. Twenty years after the last great war another struggle to exhaustion seems inevitable. But nothing has been lost.

If there must be another period of chaos, another generation of men will stumble out of the ruins resolved to make a recurrence of such folly impossible. They will dream, as they dreamed in 1919, of international cooperation. But they will dream next time with the experience of the League of Nations to guide them. They will know what not to expect, if nothing more.

Roach and Mussolini.

A COMPANY to be known as Roach and Mussolini will produce moving pictures in Italy. Vittorio Mussolini, 21-year-old aviator son of the premier, is visiting Hollywood as Hal Roach's guest to get an insight into American production methods.

If Americans lift an eyebrow at his presence here to examine the movie industry, young Mr. Mussolini must not interpret it as a sign of rudeness. As he knows, his famous father sees no good in the democratic form of government.

Americans may be all wrong, but it's their notion that the form of government and the way business is conducted are closely related. Specifically, they believe that freedom from the restraint which a totalitarian government necessarily places on enterprise somehow gives enterprisers a green light and enables them to go further in a shorter time than they would go under tight political restraint.

It would be enlightening if Premier Mussolini would explain, in some future address, why his son is going into business with an American who probably has only a vague notion of what blessings fascism has to confer on business. Evidently, either Vittorio Mussolini or Hal Roach is barking up the wrong tree.

Stowaway.

ENTHUSIASTIC CROWDS turning out to welcome him on his western trip gratify President Roosevelt. That's perfectly natural.

He is sure now of popular support, which some observers thought he had lost. He knows he could run for the presidency tomorrow and win without trying.

Some of the newspapermen accompanying him say the trip also has revealed to Mr. Roosevelt that some supporters expect him to run again in 1940 for a third term. Be that as it may, the President again has proof of his popularity.

Postmaster General Farley once boasted that the people are for Mr. Roosevelt, regardless of what he proposes or doesn't propose. That means, if it's true, that they don't care any more about the stowaway on the presidential train this trip than they cared about it in the last election. The stowaway is, of course, the new deal objective of destroying the independence of the supreme court.

The President will interpret enthusiasm on his current trip in the same way that he interpreted his overwhelming victory last November; there's no reason to believe otherwise. As he did then, when he speaks to the people and bows to their applause, his hand is closed figuratively about the stowaway hidden in his pocket—the image of a subservient and dependent supreme court. A cheer for him is a cheer for it, he blandly assumes.

President Roosevelt made an undemocratic mistake the first time he tried this deception. It will be a great pity if he repeats it.

What Will Sen. Black Do About Ku Klux Klan Charges, Is Query on Every Tongue in Capital.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Sept 28—What is former Senator Black going to do when he gets home this week and what can he do?

These questions are uppermost in conversation here as the man who has been appointed by President Roosevelt to the supreme court bench and confirmed by the senate appears bes the port of Norfolk from a vacation in Europe.

Mr Black is accused of having once taken an oath in the Ku Klux Klan, and documentary evidence to support the charge has been widely printed in the press.

The Klan oath binds its members to discriminate against Catholics, Jews, and Negroes, and to do one's utmost to prevent any of them from ever holding public office. No other fraternal order in America, secret or public, has ever, so far as known, pledged its members to such a course or anything like it.

What are the courses open to Mr. Black and what are the courses open to those who think he never should be permitted to remain on the supreme court of the United States?

1 Mr Black can resign voluntarily or at the private request of President Roosevelt, made directly or through an intermediary. This is a highly improbable development because Mr Roosevelt wouldn't make such a request and Mr. Black will never resign. To do so is an admission on his part that the Klan oath has warped his judicial capacity, something he never will concede.

2 Mr. Black can make a statement saying he has taken the oath as associate justice of the supreme court of the United States and that this oath transcends any other pledge or obligation of the past and that he is willing to be judged on his record—that is, he stands ready to be impeached in the regular way—if his course as justice is found in the future to be in any way discriminatory against people of any creed or race or color. This is what Mr Black probably will say in a public statement, even possibly avoiding any mention of earlier Klan membership on the ground that what he thinks today and says in broad terms is more important than what he thought or said a decade or more ago.

Will Satisfy Some

Such a statement will satisfy the new dealers and the so-called "liberals" who really believe that the end justifies the means. They feel that anybody who is for radical doctrine expiates any earlier offense, no matter how illiberal it may be. All the so-called "liberal" periodicals are taking that stand, but not so the Negro press or the Catholic publications. To them, liberalism means tolerance and also the fundamental attitude of a man at all times and not just when he needs political support to get elected, or sympathy when he is caught, as is Mr Black, with a Klan membership that he concealed from his colleagues in the senate.

This question of concealment raises an interesting query as to as to whether Mr Black was a member of the Klan was raised while his confirmation was being debated in the United States senate. Mr Black either led his colleagues to believe he was not a member, or else remained silent. Was this "concealment" in a legal sense? The supreme court of the United States, in Crosby vs. Buchanan said:

"In a court of conscience, deliberate concealment is equivalent to deliberate falsehood."

But Mr Black may have felt that he had a right to refuse to testify against himself. Certainly all the new deal legislation on publicly floated securities, for instance, contains the important provision that concealment or omission of a "material" fact renders any issuer or seller of securities to the public liable to punishment. Mr. Black was "sold," so to speak, to the country as a liberal and that is supposed to mean a man of breadth and vision and not a man of religious or racial prejudice or intolerance. The material fact of his Klan membership was omitted by himself when the question was raised.

Next comes the problem of what the opponents of former Senator Black can do legally to prevent him from becoming an associate justice of the supreme court.

Technically, the President can do nothing more about it. Impeachment at present or next January, when congress reconvenes, is not feasible because the process applies only to acts committed during one's time of actual service as a judge.

One Possible Way

But in Washington courts there is what is known as the District of Columbia code and the United States code. In both there is available the so-called "extraordinary writ of quo warranto." Briefly, this is a common law action which must be brought by the attorney general or prosecuting attorney directed against any person who occupies or attempts to occupy illegally any public office.

The illegality in this case relates to the fact that the Constitution plainly prohibits any senator or representative from being appointed to any civil office under the United States government if the "emoluments" of that office have been increased during the term served by said senator or representative.

The "emoluments" of a supreme court justice have been increased by a law passed in March, 1937, when Mr Black was a member of the senate. These emoluments amounted to a guarantee during retirement that congress would not cut a justice's salary, an assurance hitherto not available to retiring supreme court justices.

Application for filing a writ questioning Mr. Black's right to hold office must be presented first to the attorney general. Should the attorney general refuse, he may subject himself to a possible action of mandamus or to impeachment.

Any "interested" party can institute an action seeking the writ of "quo warranto" or "by what right" inquiry.

Here is where the difficulty of the opposition arises. For the courts have held that a private citizen has no standing in an action of this kind because he is not a sufficiently "interested" party to justify the granting of a writ.

Three Interested Groups

There are, however, three groups of persons, any of whom might be considered sufficiently interested to justify maintenance of an action of this kind.

The first category includes any or all attorneys who happen to

168 Days of Mistakes

That Is the Story of the New Deal Attack on the Supreme Court, Now Being Told.

A REVEALING and interesting story of the new deal's ill fated attack on the supreme court is told in the current issue of The Saturday Evening Post. It is the second of three articles by Joseph Alsop and Turner Catledge, New York Herald-Tribune and New York Times Washington correspondents.

The title chosen for the articles is "The 168 Days." The first article, published in the Sept. 18 edition, presented the background of the attack on the court. The second article relates how President Roosevelt's advisers gave up hope of pleasing him and tried to call off the attack in May.

"At last, only the President remained an optimist . . . and he was rather impatient of anything but optimism in those around him," says the authors. Mr. Roosevelt, they say, "wanted something more than a liberal court." Otherwise, he would have dropped his attack when the court liberalized itself in its decision on the Wagner act. Or, he would have compromised on a smaller number of additional justices than he had asked for originally.

Instead, he pressed on with his original bill. In an interview, he explained that a 5-4 majority was not enough. He wanted a court which would "cooperate" with the executive. The implication of a subservient court frightened many congressmen, who interpreted it as justification of their fears for an independent judiciary.

MESSRS. Alsop and Catledge describe in detail the intricate maneuvers followed by both sides to gain advantage. The White House brain trust—Tom Corcoran, Joseph Keenan—tried to blast the bill out of committee, but Sen. Ashurst of Arizona, blocked them. They tried to get action from the house, but were blocked there, too.

They waited for pressure from the public, but it never came. They used political pressure themselves, but it didn't scare enough congressmen to be effective. At last, only the President was willing to go on fighting. His advisers wanted to drop the bill until 1938.

About that time Mr. Roosevelt left for a fishing trip in Texas. A few of the administration stalwarts—among them Sen. Robinson, who had been promised the first court appointment—invited James Roosevelt, the President's son, to lunch.

They told him the unvarnished truth, that the court bill was "raising hell" with the Democratic party. They asked him to make his father see reason, "to persuade him not to run his head into a stone wall."

James Roosevelt, as far as it is known, never delivered the message. His father returned to Washington still determined to continue the attack. Bit by bit, his determination was softened, however, until finally he seemed ready to suspend the fight till 1938.

AT THAT critical moment Justice Van Devanter announced his retirement. Those on the inside realized the court fight was over. All Mr. Roosevelt needed to do was appoint Sen. Robinson to the vacancy, reach a compromise on the court bill and let congress go home. Then, the President showed his set of mind by pointedly neglecting to call Sen. Robinson to the White House. The senator became angry. It was plain that Mr. Roosevelt wouldn't be satisfied to appoint the Democratic stalwart unless he also could appoint some new dealers.

Finally, however, Sen. Robinson was called to the White House. His hurt feelings were soothed. He said the President finally had consented to compromise and, with more grace than he had shown for many weeks, Sen Robinson began to work for a compromise on the court bill. Unexpectedly, death intervened. When Sen. Robinson was found dead the court fight was 160 days old. His death was the last upset in one of the unluckiest fights ever undertaken by an American political leader.

Fanatical Heroism of Both Japanese and Chinese Leads Hundreds to Self-Destruction.

By JACK STINNETT
Associated Press Writer

ORIENTAL temperament coupled with a hatred brewing more than 60 years is making the Sino-Japanese conflict a "suicide war."

In the two months of major conflict, an amazing number of cases of fanatical heroism ending in self-destruction have been reported on both sides. They range from the traditional hara-kiri of the Japanese to the suicide of masses of 300 or more Chinese who have walked stolidly into the withering fire of enemy batteries.

Tradition and Patriotism

On the one hand are the Japanese, aflame again with their long-smoldering feeling of "manifest destiny," and subscribing to a point of view, generations old, which has made of suicide a formal ceremony of expiation, devotion, protest or contempt.

On the other are the Chinese, presenting their most united front in recent times and giving vent to their new nationalism in feverish patriotism.

Early in the conflict, Shimezo Maho, a Japanese merchant, cast himself into the sea from the suicide island of Oshima that the government might have his $3,000 life insurance to add to the war chest.

Commander Kaoru Fujita, in Tokyo, divorced his bride of three months that he might have no distraction in his fervent application to the war. Three months later, in north China, he met heroic death in action.

Quicker Than Hara-Kiri

Tokyo newspapers reported that all Japanese aviators were equipped with pistols as well as the small, traditional Samurai swords. If they were shot down and had no time before capture to perform the rites of hara-kiri, they might shoot themselves with the pistol, the dispatch explained.

In August, while an air battle raged over Shanghai, observers saw a Japanese plane catch fire. Whirling his ship in a great flaming arc, the pilot, instead of bailing out, did a power dive into the Chinese lines, carrying with him a death-dealing cargo of bombs.

Over Peiping, Japanese aviators defied anti-aircraft guns to skywrite reports of their victories on other fronts. In the Woosung area, a dozen Japanese, stripped to red loin cloths, swam a creek under fire, clambered up the muddy banks and with their bare bodies, spiked a Chinese battery.

White Band of Death

At the junction of the Whangpoo and Yangtze rivers, 70 picked members of the Shirodasukitai, the "White Band of Death," went ashore in a small launch. Those few who reached the wall of flame that was the Chinese land battery, died in hand-to-hand combat.

Such cases are, by no means, confined to Nippon's hordes. There was the Chinese aviator who engaged four enemy bombers and returned again and again to the combat until his plane was shot to pieces.

Another of China's "devil dogs of the air" staged a lone raid over Shanghai in a September dusk. Flying low, he dived into the hail from anti-aircraft guns to drop bombs uncomfortably close to the Japanese flagship, Idzuma.

For days, daring Chinese operated a fleet of mosquito-like seasleds in the Whangpoo and Yangtze, defying the gunboats to blow them from the water as they dashed madly on echo runs into the fleet to fire torpedoes at close range.

March to Annihilation

It was the Japanese who reported, in the battle of Lotien, a women's "battalion of death," composed of 20-year-old Chinese communist girls who did not know the meaning of the word retreat.

And in the same battle, a company of 300 grimly determined Chinese crashed through the Japanese lines, inflicting terrific losses, and continued their advance until their battalion was annihilated.

30,000,000 Shoes.

One of the next trade agreements the United States will sign with another country is likely to be with Czechoslovakia. Secretary Hull has issued notice of intention to negotiate a pact. The department of state has made a list of products on which the United States will consider reducing tariff rates when granting concessions to Czechoslovakia. Among the astonishing facts about this list is the inclusion of shoes and textiles. In this country's trade with Czechoslovakia the latter comes out heavily on top selling here many times more goods than we sell in that market. Last year more than $23,500,000 in merchandise entered our ports from Czechoslovakia; only $4,600,000 in American merchandise went to that market.

Shoes from Czechoslovakia have come into this country in enormous quantities. The United States department of commerce has just published a booklet on world production of leather footwear, from which it appears that of the 1,784,000 pairs of women's shoes imported last year 95 per cent came from Czechoslovakia; that the same country was also our second largest source of imported men's shoes and the main source of imports of children's shoes.

The government's review of imports of shoes finds that since 1932 this trade has "shown a tendency to decline." But the figures for the first half of 1931 indicate no such tendency; in that period more than 1,447,200 pairs of foreign shoes entered this country, imports not much smaller than those for the full year 1936. Compared with the first half of last year, this year's six-months imports were nearly 70 per cent greater! Since 1930 more than 15,000,000 pairs of shoes have been shipped here from Czechoslovakia. Yet Secretary Hull now considers slashing our tariff rates on foolish shoes in a pact with the country that has profited so handsomely.—New York Sun.

Dinner Stories

Two hefty-looking men, who from the look of their clothes, had just finished work of a pretty rough kind, were dining in one of the all-night restaurants.

One of them was sawing violently at a piece of steak, each mouthful being won by sheer hard work. At last he came to a particularly tough piece and, turning to his mate, he said in a hoarse whisper that could be heard plainly: "Taint the food wot does yer good 'ere, Joe; it's the blinkin' exercise."—Montreal Star.

In New York

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—The metropolis has fishermen aplenty but scarcely any hunters. Some of the big game variety, such as the C. J. Akeleys and Ted and Kermit Roosevelt. Sporting goods houses find little interest in exhibits of guns and hunting paraphernalia.

But their fishing sections are always crowded and invariably the largest departments. None knows the why of the lack of interest in shooting, for there is good hunting in the nearby Adirondacks and in Maine, and there is even deer in remote sections of Long Island.

Fishing is about the only out-of-door sport indulged by actors. Some of the better fish tales come out of the smoking rooms of the Lambs and Players. Cartoonists are also enthusiastic anglers—such as Webster, Ding, Creamy and McManus. Nearly all leave town for the trout season.

Bob Ripley is also a skilled fisherman and has cast his line in more different waters of the world than any other living fisherman. And of course, President Roosevelt has given great impetus to fishing by his many jaunts after the finny tribe.

There grew up an increasing number of back yard cafes this summer. Mostly in rear of houses in tenement districts on the East Side with a surround of whitewash fence, perhaps an old shanthus tree, a carpet of gravel and a coat of "atmosphere." They are in charge of Jean, Gastons and Fredericks and are reached through smelly kitchens. There are no menus, the prices are stiff and the food no better than in the average table d'hote save the meats are cooked in wine sauce and each customer served with crepes Suzette—the least expensive but most expensively listed dessert. Back yard places have done much to thin sidewalk cafe business.

Godfather To 1,600

PARIS—President Albert Lebrun has little to say about the way France is run, but he has an excellent claim to the title of world's champion godfather. He has more than 1,600 godchildren.

Among the duties that keep the French chief of state busy is the job of being godfather to every baby who is the eighth living child of a French couple. He acts, that is, if the parents want him to be godfather. And parents usually do.

PRESIDENT LEBRUN Poses With Grandchild.

Years ago the Society for the Increase of the Population of France persuaded the president to be godfather for the fourteenth child born to a French couple as a tribute to the parents' contribution to the nation.

After that the president received a flood of requests. Some were from parents with more than fourteen children who wondered why they had been left out. Others were from parents with one child, who informed the chief of state that their's was a very exceptional baby.

So the president compromised on the eighth baby. President Lebrun holds a record average of 320 godchildren a year for the last five years of his seven-year term.

Note to politicians—he doesn't kiss them all.

Today in Ohio History

Abraham Whipple, better known as Commodore Whipple, had won fame for himself before he joined the early settlers at Marietta, O. He was born Sept. 26, 1733 at Providence, R. I. and became a commander of a vessel when he was quite young.

During the French and Indian war he was a captain. In the Revolutionary war as commander of several American vessels he proved a terror to British sailors. After settling at Marietta, he became interested in inland navigation and conducted the first square rigged vessel down the Ohio and Mississippi rivers to the Gulf of Mexico.

WE SEEK PEACE SAYS IL DUCE

Duce Says Mammoth Demonstrations in Germany Point to Friendship.

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, Sept. 25 — Peace, former Mussolini of Italy and Fuehrer Hitler of Germany and 500,000 Germans and a world wide radio audience tonight, will be the cause from Nazi-Fascist collaboration.

Der Fuehrer spoke first and briefly at the gala festival in May field of Olympic stadium, declaring that ways for Germany and Italy is the meaning of the mammoth Fascist-fair demonstration of the past four days.

Il Duce, speaking in the German city as host, followed.

"The whole world is tensely asking," Mussolini said, "what will be the result of the Berlin meeting: Peace or war?" Both of us, der Fuehrer and myself, can answer with a loud voice: 'Peace'."

Il Duce's voice was hoarse, his German perfect but his pronunciation showed a certain stress.

Mussolini spoke twice as long as Hitler, who said but a few words prefacing the carefully prepared address of his guest.

Hitler bitingly denounced the democratic, marxistic international," (Communist), while Il Duce predicted that Europe would go Fascist "not through our propaganda, but by the logic of things."

Mussolini stoutly defended his Spanish policy "where thousands of Italian Fascist volunteers have fallen attempting to save European culture—a culture which still can be rejuvenated if it turns from Baal and lying god of Geneva and Moscow toward the real truth of our revolution."

As Mussolini finished speaking the evening's earlier sprinkle turned to rain in earnest.

Thousands of umbrellas and their holders rose in the stadium, as Hitler and Mussolini left the May field and walked through a lane of guards of the Olympic stadium brilliantly lighted by great floodlights.

Hitler, after asserting that Germany had been badly kicked about after the war, thanked Fascist Italy for "not partaking" in the kicking.

Like Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, Nazi propaganda minister who opened the mass meeting, der Fuehrer expressed "great rejoicing" of the German people for Il Duce's visit.

City Will Drop Powell Pay Cut Court Action

Case Will Not Be Carried to State Supreme Court; Other Matters on Council Program.

City council voted last night to drop the back salary case of John Powell, former municipal court clerk, who obtained a $655 judgment to reimburse him for involuntary pay cuts during a program of municipal retrenchment in recent years.

City Solicitor Ralph E. Carmany said the case before council last night, asking if an appeal to the Ohio supreme court should be filed in behalf of the city. In discussing the case, he said the chances of reversing the common pleas and appellate courts which held in favor of Powell were slight.

In disposing of other matters last night, council passed legislation for sidewalk, curb and gutter improvement on Edgewood drive, authorized lease of the city hog farm, prohibited parking on sections of Pearl and Leader streets, made two minor fund transfers and received requests of two groups of citizens for installation of traffic lights.

The action on Edgewood drive was adoption of a resolution declaring it necessary to make an improvement there by constructing curbs and gutters on both sides of the street and a sidewalk on the north side from Prospect street west. The cost of the improvement is to be assessed against owners of property abutting on the improvements. The work will be financed by a bond issue.

Bids On Farm Lease

An ordinance passed Sept. 13 authorizing lease of the city hog farm on the Agosta road was amended by a new ordinance passed last night to include authority for the service director to not only lease the farm for two years but to extend and re-execute the lease upon the same terms for two more years. Safety-Service Director John V. Ruth is receiving bids for lease of the farm.

Parking was prohibited on the east side of Pearl street from West Church street to the first alley south of Church and on the east side of Leader street from Center street north to the overhead railroad crossing in an ordinance passed last night. Penalty for violation of the ordinance is a fine of $2 to $25. It was passed as an emergency measure, effective at once. Councilman D. R. Biggert voted against it after inquiring if there ever had been any accidents at those points. Councilman Harry Cahill, who sponsored the measure, said he knew of no accidents there but that there was barely room for automobiles to pass when cars were parked on both sides of those sections of the street.

The locations of traffic lights sought last night are at Washington and Delaware avenues and at East Center and Barnhart streets.

P.-T. A. Delegation

Representatives of the Pearl Street school Parent-Teacher association attended the meeting to make a request for the Washington-Delaware avenue light. Miss Elma Howser, principal of the Pearl Street school, Mrs. Ross A. Todd, president of the P.-T. A. of that school, Mrs. E. G. Haldy and William Arndt, both of whom have children attending the school, and T. S. Cathers, city engineer, spoke in favor of the proposed installation of the light to protect Pearl Street pupils who live east of Delaware avenue, and Safety-Service Director John V. Ruth said he recommended it heartily. The group pointed out that 67 pupils had to cross Delaware avenue to get to the Pearl street school and that parents of younger pupils were so alarmed about the danger of the crossing that they made trips to the building four times a day to accompany their children across Delaware avenue. They pointed out that State street, Delaware avenue and Washington avenue converge at the crossing and that motorists drive at high speeds through the intersection. Councilman Biggert said he doubted the effectiveness of a traffic light to adequately protect the crossing for young children. The request was referred to the police and street and alley committees.

The request for the East Center-Barnhart street light came in the form of a petition signed by 140 "parents, teachers and friends of school children in East Marion." This request also was referred to the police and street and alley committees.

Councilman Basil Williams said he had received complaints about strong odor from either the sewage treatment works or the city hog farm, Safety-Service Director Ruth said the odor probably came from the hog farm, due to a temprary shortage of hogs to consume the city's daily output of garbage. More hogs are expected soon and the accumulation of garbage probably will be eliminated, he said.

Fund transfers authorized shifted $500 from the incidental account to the equipment fund at the City hospital and an additional appropriation of $250 was voted for incidentals in the city garbage department. Part of this is needed to pay for improvements at the city barns and for quarters for the workmen, Safety-Service Director Ruth said.

STATE PATROLMAN IS FOUND KILLED

Marion Officers Called To Aid in Search for Man Missing 24 Hours.

Patrolman George Conn, 28, of Cumberland, was found shot to death in a ditch a mile north of Freeport, 30 miles from his headquarters at New Philadelphia, according to a late Associated Press bulletin this afternoon. Highway patrolmen from the Marion substation had been called into the search for him earlier today, after he had been missing since mid-afternoon yesterday.

Marion officers were ordered to report at New Philadelphia with high-powered rifles to assist officers of three counties and other patrolmen in the search for Conn. The search for him began when he failed to report after leaving New Philadelphia to arrest a man who ignored a citation for inefficient automobile brakes.

Conn did not respond to an 8 p. m. radio call to go to an accident scene last night and his office did not receive a routine 9 p. m. report call. He was last seen an hour after dark in Freeport.

The body was wrapped in burlap and concealed in a ditch several miles from the place where a Harrison county farmer discovered Conn's patrol car several hours earlier.

Conn disappeared after going to Freeport for Raymond Eichelberry, who had ignored a court citation for inefficient automobile brakes.

A Harrison county deputy sheriff named Dickinson found Eichelberry at his farm home today and quoted him as saying the patrolman had not been there.

TAG FOOTBALL LOOP FORMED IN SCHOOLS

Former Harding Gridders in Charge of Program for Grade Pupils.

Play in the tag football league started today on the school playgrounds, under the supervision of the Y. M. C. A. in cooperation with the WPA and NYA, Charles Caprino, recreation director, is in charge.

Games were played today as follows: Glenwood-Oakland; Silver-Oak; Mark-North Main. The schedule for the next four weeks follows: Oct. 5, Oakland-Silver; Oak-Mark, North Main-Glenwood; Oct. 12, Glenwood-Mark, Oakland-Oak, Silver-North Main; Oct. 19, Oakland-Mark, Silver-Glenwood, Oak-North Main; Oct. 26, Glenwood-Oak, North Main-Oakland, Mark-Silver.

Tag football trains boys in the fundamentals of football, such as passing, kicking and running, and is played with no danger to the participants, according to Caprino. The object of the game is to make goals by running through an opposing team but the only method of stopping the advancing runner is by tapping or tagging him. With the exception of the tag rule, all other rules are the same as those governing junior high school league playing.

Harding High school coach Carl Cramer is cooperating with the recreational leaders in the project. Each of the six schools in the league has been drilling daily after school under the direction of the recreational leaders, assisted by William Wessner and Caprino, both former Harding football players.

He ... watching them as well as Neill ... was a puzzling surprise. Who ... but Bonniger could possibly know of his trip to town?

The third man was young, strongly built, yet had an unhealthy look, his face being sallow pale and his eyes red-rimmed. He wore spectacles. He had straw-colored hair that looked almost as if it had been peroxided and a heavy blond mustache. Altogether a queer-looking guy. Suddenly it came to Neill that he had seen the fellow that morning, when coming down with Bonniger. Making a regular business of following him, it seemed. How could he have known that Neill was going to return?

Edward Barney, the estate agent, maintained a small office in an old building on a side street off Charles. When Neill opened the door, a black-haired man with protuberant eyes distorted by thick lenses arose to meet him. That was all that Neill wanted. He immediately backed out muttering something about making a mistake. It was Googly to the life.

Losing Two Trailers

Thereafter for several hours Neill, according to his methods he had learned in the department, went about town picking up little scraps of information about Edward Barney, and piecing them together.

Barney, it appeared, led an exemplary life. Lived with his wife and two children in a neat little house on the edge of Roland park. Mrs. Barney wore the trousers, it was said, and she being an ardent prohibitionist, Barney was forced to indulge his taste for an occasional glass away from home.

Neill led his trailers back and forth around town, out to Roland park and back again. As yet he had no object in trying to shake them. He wanted his movements reported to Bonniger. When he went into Miller's for his supper they sat at other tables in the place. The two detectives were entirely unaware of the peroxided young man, but he was on to them.

After supper Neill entered the Belvedere hotel. One detective followed him in, the other remaining outside. The blond young man was not visible at the moment. Neill evaded the detective by making a quick turn through the corridors and coming back to another opening into the lobby, watched, partly concealed, to see what the man would do. The detective was standing in the lobby looking around for Neill. He started towards the doorway where Neill was concealed. At that moment the blond young man came in from the street. He overtook the detective and Neill heard him ask:

"Say, are you trailing a tall young man in a gray suit?"

The detective answered, "What is it to you?"

"Nothing at all, only I was coming up Charles street just now and I saw you following him."

"Well, what about it?"

"I just wanted to tell you that I saw him come out of the barber shop entrance on Charles street a minute ago. He hopped a taxi. Here's the number for you."

"Much obliged," said the detective, hastily. Neill, looking out, saw him beat it out of the door. He picked up his partner outside, and they made off quickly. From inside the door the blond young man was watching them with a grin. Neill thought: Well, I'll be damned! ... What's his game?

In the Belvedere bar Neill ran into a crony of Barney's whom he had been told that he would find there. From him he learned that Barney was accustomed, on his way home every afternoon to drop in for a glass of beer at Heinrich's a little cafe in the Falls road. This was the essential piece of information he had been after.

It was a long way from the Belvedere hotel. Neill took a taxi, and the blond young man another. Falls road proved to be a miscellaneous sort of street leading to aristocratic Roland park. It was lined by small stores, little frame houses occupied by colored washerwomen, and so on. Heinrich's was a neat, new saloon with mahogany panels in the show window and neon beer signs. No view of the interior could be had from the street.

Neill went in. The blond young man didn't follow him in, but when the swing shutter opened, Neill could see him hovering outside, trying to get a look in. The place was moderately well filled. Neill could hear that the conversation was all about the Fanning case, and the death of Miss Rayner. He did not attempt to join the general group, but waited at the far end of the bar to be served.

A Real Clue, At Last

Heinrich was in typical German beerseller envelloped in a vast white apron. Neill said to him:

"Terrible thing about the death of the old lady today."

"You said it, mister."

"Fellow downtown told me that it was Edward Barney who first introduced Prescott Fanning to Miss Rayner."

"No!" exclaimed Heinrich. "Why Mr. Barney is a good customer of mine."

"Is that so?" Neill made believe to look over the group of drinkers. "Is he here now?"

"No, he drops in afternoons around 5:30."

"Well, don't say anything about it. Maybe there is nothing in it."

"You're right."

"But it would be a funny note, wouldn't it, if Barney and Fanning met right here?"

"Prescott Fanning's never been in here, mister. I've seen his photograph and heard him described. He's a man you wouldn't mistake."

"Maybe Barney met some friend of Fanning's here—a go-between sort of."

"Mr. Barney has his own friends here every day. I can't recollect him talking to a stranger. I don't get many strangers was out here."

"Think back. It would be quite a stunt if you and me could turn up something new in this big case. Have a beer with me."

Heinrich drew a beer and sipped it thoughtfully. He was attracted by the suggestion of publicity for himself, and lowered his voice confidentially. "I do mind a stranger meeting up with Mr. Barney in here," said he slowly. "Maybe he was in a couple of times."

"Did he pick up Barney here the first time?" asked Neill eagerly.

"No, you could see Mr. Barney knew him before."

"What like man?"

Heinrich shook his head heavily. "I can't remember."

"Was he a big fellow?"

"No."

"A little fellow?"

"Just medium like."

"Was he a young man?"

"No. He wasn't old neither. Just average age."

"How was he dressed?"

"I didn't notice special. Just like anybody else."

Neill, discouraged, tried another line. "What did they drink?"

Heinrich's eyes brightened immediately. "I can remember that, mister. Mr. Barney, he had his beer as usual but the stranger he ordered a drink that was new to me. A rum collins he called it. Made just like an ordinary collins, but with rum instead of gin. It's a good drink. I have offered it to some of my customers and they like it."

"Now we're getting somewhere," said Neill. "There must have been some talk about this new drink. Can you repeat it?"

"Sure. The stranger tells me how to mix it. He mentions that he had a client who was a banana importer, and he was able to get in rum on his ships."

Here was a real clue at last. "Good!" said Neill. He grinned and drank off his beer. Beer had never tasted better to him.

It was all Heinrich could tell him. "Don't say anything about this," Neill warned him. "I'll be seeing you soon." He paid his shot and left the place.

Neill and the blond young man have a shooting duel tomorrow.

In Ohio History

(From the J. R. Galbraith collection of Ohio histories, written for The Associated Press.)

DANA AND SHERIDAN

Charles A. Dana, the great editor, visited the headquarters of General Phil Sheridan during the Civil war and accompanied the general on a tour of inspection. He noticed a spirit of good will between the general and the men under his command.

When asked how this feeling came to be established, Sheridan ventured that his men felt that way toward him because they knew from experience that he did not send them anywhere he was unwilling to go himself.

Dana then asked him if he did not experience fear in battle. To this he frankly replied, "I am often very much afraid, and if I would obey the first impulse I would run away. But I control myself when there is fighting to be done. The danger must be faced and there is no more danger facing it boldly than in a half-hearted way."

HANDICAPS HALT WAR BROADCASTS

Due to transmission difficulties there have been no actual war broadcasts from China, the only kind possible thus far being talks by eye-witnesses, The Associated Press reported today. For the most part talks have been by American war correspondents.

SIBI is the Shanghai station which starts signals this way. They go to Manila, then to California where the network picks them up.

LAWRENCE WRITES ON CAPITAL SITUATION

have at the present time or at any time during Mr. Black's incumbency a case pending before the supreme court of the United States.

The second group would be any duly authorized officer or committee of the American Bar association. The association is now in convention at Kansas City, and if ever there was a case for leadership by the American bar in seeing that the letter as well as the spirit of the Constitution is observed, it is in the removal from the highest bench of the land of a man who is plainly ineligible by the words of the Constitution itself to become a supreme court justice until January, 1939, when the term for which Mr. Black was elected would have expired.

The third group or party is the senate itself which on one occasion instituted quo warranto proceedings against a man the senate had already confirmed. The senate must vote to authorize counsel to begin such proceedings, and congress doesn't meet till next January.

Any attorney who has a case before the supreme court may question the right of a judge to sit who may have been disqualified by some previous action in administer justice in a specific piece of litigation. There are precedents for raising the issue of disqualification in our courts of justice, and the supreme court itself has usually been very sensitive on this point, judges voluntarily refusing to sit in cases in which they had a previous law office connection or relationship.

The same principle would naturally apply to a question of constitutional qualification and Mr. Black would improve his position with the public opinion of America if he came out forthrightly and asked the supreme court to pass on the question of his eligibility under the Constitution. This is in some respects an even more important question than his previous background of the Klan. For the latter is merely a reflection on the carelessness of President Roosevelt and the senate in appointing and confirming Mr. Black, while the former point involves the establishment of a precedent for all times of ignoring the Constitution when a political group or faction feels itself strong enough to adopt the machiavellian doctrine that the end always justifies the means no matter how reprehensible the means.
